About temporary airbrush tattoos:

Temporary tattoos are a fun way to express oneself. They scrub off with soap and water (or alcohol if not water based). There are many designs to choose from, ranging from little teddy bears and butterflies to armbands and dragons. The selection keeps all, young and old, coming back for multiple tattoos throughout an event. Combinations of tattoos and letters add to the endless creative options! Add some glitter and you have a dazzling design that delights both the user and viewer.

How long do they last?

The most frequently asked question! Water based make-up lasts 1-2 days, and comes off with soap and water. The Graftobian make-up used have great staying power, is hypo-allergenic make-up, not paint, so that there are no toxins to make one ill. . It can last hours, a day, and even a couple of days as long as it does not get scrubbed with soap and water. A sealer is applied to help it stay looking fresher longer.

Alcohol based body paints last 3-5 days and are removed using rubbing alcohol. Sealer is also applied to keep it fresh and help it last it's longest.

Airbrush painting vs traditional brush painting?

With airbrush painting, the brush never touches your face or body, making this a very hygienic method of applying tattoos. The combination of airbrush and stencils allow for designs that are beautifully blended with resulting shades of color otherwise unobtainable via the tradition brush method.

Doesn't airbrush cost more?

Yes it does (per hour) and it's worth it, especially if you have larger crowds. A good airbrush artists can do between 40-60 designs an hour, depending on how complex or simple the request is. Because it is so quick it's perfect for the child that can't sit long. It's perfect for the teenager that wants the latest tattoo but doesn't want to permanently alter their body. It's perfect for that adult that's always wanted to see what it would look like but doesn't want to make it permanent. Because they are so quick, often they are applied to ankles, arms, upper and lower backs and just about every modest body part. Airbrush tattoos meet their needs!
